

DON'T FIGHT CONGRESS, IS ADMONITION BY GARDINER

Attacks on Men At Capitol Will Do District More Harm Than Good In Securing Wishes, Says New Commissioner.

By BILL PRICE.

Commissioner Gardiner's formula for bringing about extremely cordial and favorable relations between Congress and the people of the District was amplified today in a brief talk with The Times representative.

"I do not believe," he declared, "that the District has enemies in Congress; that is, men who will not listen to reason and argument. I have such faith in the integrity and good intentions of members of Congress toward the District I am sure all of them will listen to facts and sound argument whenever they entertain views contrary to the best interests of the National Capital.

Wants Co-operation.
"Therefore, I hope to see all civic organizations and citizens generally discuss matters of local interest before Congress in a dispassionate manner, entirely free from personalities and abuse. Let these organizations, when big questions are before Congress, prepare the District viewpoint in the clearest possible manner, and have it submitted to committees or individuals in such a way as to arouse no antagonism toward the District." Mr. Gardiner's attitude has already been approved by leading citizens generally, and his plan will be tried out in the future. This plan is founded upon the cold fact that there is mighty little use of attacking men in Congress, however vitriolic and unfair they may be, when they possess the knives with which to cut the throat of the District or at least attempt to do so. Ask these gentlemen to lay their knives aside and permit you to argue with them. There is always abundant argument, Mr. Gardiner thinks, as to why Washington should not be hampered in becoming the nation's best-loved city, possessing everything that will add to its beauty.

Howard Asks Better Relations.
Not many days ago this representative of The Times talked with Congressman Howard of Georgia, who is to be the chairman of the subcommittee of the House Appropriations Committee on the District of Columbia. As such he will make up the District appropriation bill in the next Congress. He personally urged better relations between District people and Congress and pointed out that nothing is gained by animosity between a few Congressmen and citizens of the city.

"The immense majority of men in the House want to see Washington the nation's ideal city," he said. "Their constituents want to see this also. So the District has more friends in Congress than some people think."

Smell of "Likker" Foils 3 Who Would Evade Paying Tax

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—"Hmf," sniffed Patrolman Patrick Cassidy, of the North Bergen, N. J. force, I smell likker." The patrolman was standing at Thirty-fourth street and Broadway, North Bergen, where a wagon had broken down. The men in charge of the vehicle—Edward Kendrick, a saloonkeeper, of 570 Sixth avenue, Manhattan; Joseph Boratta, of Cliffside, and Michael Fanning, of Manhattan—declared their cargo was sauerkraut. But Cassidy couldn't be deceived.

Yesterday the three men were arraigned before United States Commissioner Edward R. Stanton, at Hoboken, charged with attempting to evade payment of the war tax on 400 gallons of whisky. It was said they were going to hide the liquor at Cliffside, so it would not be discovered in stock.

think. It is noticeable that when a sharp attack is made on the District in the House there will arise half a dozen or more men to speak in its behalf. That in itself ought to point a moral. Congress and the District ought to understand each other better, that the good of this national city may be promoted."

Mr. Howard told The Times that his subcommittee will always be ready to hear representatives of citizens' associations and other organizations in behalf of projects that may not have received the consideration citizens felt they were entitled to at the hands of the Commissioner.

Attacks Are In Vein.

Many good friends of the District in the House who have discussed Congress-District relations with The Times frankly admit that there are several men in Congress whose attitude toward the District is irritating, but they point out that attacks upon these men does more harm than good. The characteristics of these men are more or less known in the House, and their influence in behalf of what they advocate would probably be lessened but for sympathy created for them by attacks upon them and upon Congress generally.

Mr. Howard confirmed a recent forecast in The Times of his policy regarding District appropriations by saying that members of the subcommittee wish to be liberal toward the District, but will probably not authorize new construction of large District projects while at high prices of building material continue. This will prevent authorization for a garbage disposal plant, a beautiful new bridge across Rock Creek Park at Calvert street, and several other projects the Commissioners have hoped for.

Miss George to Leave D. C. Service.
Miss Alice George, the only woman who ever became secretary to a District Commissioner, is to leave her post and give way to a man as secretary to Commissioner Gardiner. Miss George was secretary to Commissioner Newman, who credited her with being one of the brightest and ablest employees of the District, thoroughly familiar with District problems and conditions.

Miss George, before going to the District building, was known at the Capitol as "the Congresswoman." That was before Miss Rankin became an actuality as a woman representative in the House. Miss George was for some years secretary to Congressman George of New York, and was well known to all members of the House. Mr. George was a member of the House District Committee.

GARDINER VISITS PARK VIEW CITIZENS

To the Park View Citizens' Association belongs the distinction of being the first civic organization to have as its guest and honor the new Commissioner, W. Gwynn Gardiner. Commissioner Gardiner, accompanied by Commissioner Brownlow, attended a meeting of the association in the Park View school last night.

John G. McGrath, after ten years of service, resigned as president of the association.

Prices for the best laws and gardens in the contest conducted by the association were presented by Commissioner Brownlow. G. F. Maybury, 443 Kenyon street, was awarded first prize for the best-kept front yard, the back yard award going to Charles T. Buncher, 649 Kenyon street. First honor for vegetable gardens was given to H. Barnard, 3242 Warder street. The combination prize for both front and back yards was awarded to Clayton Graff, 615 Quebec street.

LORD'S HOME IS CLUB FOR AMERICAN OFFICERS

LONDON, Oct. 10.—Officers of Pershing's troops on leave in London or passing through have a regular American club where they can while away their spare time.

Lord Leonfield has given up his palatial home in Chesham Gardens and a committee of Englishmen has transformed it into one of the most comfortable clubs in the city. It is at the disposal of the American officers.

BRITISH SEAMEN'S PAY DOUBLED BY CONTROLLER

LONDON, Oct. 10.—British seamen have had their wages increased practically 100 per cent, and the shipping controller, who is working toward a standard scale, announces that rates of petty officers and stewards will be advanced.

Seamen will, in the future, receive eleven pounds sterling on foreign-going vessels and firemen will be paid eleven pounds and ten shillings.

STRANGE MAN PAYS VISIT; KILLS WOMAN AND SELF

AKRON, Ohio, Oct. 10.—Police are unable to solve the mystery surrounding a double tragedy here yesterday.

when an unidentified man entered the home of Mrs. Sarah Case, thirty-six, shot and killed her, and then killed himself. The only witness to the killing was the dead woman's ten-year-old son. He was not harmed.

More light on the affair may be obtained today when Miss Arlene Taylor, a telephone operator, arrives from Canton. She is of the opinion, according to her statement over long distance telephone, that the man in the case was her father, Jackson Taylor. A knife found in his pocket bore that name, and the revolver was of the same make as one Taylor is known to have possessed.
